DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Analysis: The claimed invention discloses the practical application in the technological arts. However further analyzing the claims the claimed subject matter is a functional descriptive material (Data structure per se or computer program per se). The invention fails to specify pre-computer or post-computer activity. It merely manipulates abstract idea without any limitation to practical application. Therefore the claimed invention is non-statutory. The claimed invention also fails to claim the medium on which the computer program is performed.
